Constitution.

WHEN we consider that the obligations of benevolence, which are founded on the precepts and examples of the Author of Christianity, are not cancelled by the follies or crimes of our fellow Creatures: and when we reflect upon the miseries which penury, hunger, cold, unnecessary severity, unwholesome apartments and guilt (the usual attendants of Prisons) involve with them; it becomes us to extend our compassion to that part of Mankind, who are the subjects of those miseries.—By the aid of humanity, their undue and illegal Sufferings may be prevented, the links which should bind the whole family of mankind together, under all circumstances, be preserved unbroken: and such degrees and modes of punishment may be discovered and suggested as may, instead of continuing habits of vice, be-
